

Criteria	Excellent (4)	Good (3)	Average (2)	Inadequate (1)
Introduction	Catchy start engages audience from the beginning. Properly greets the audience and introduces the topic	Formal start, greets the audience, introduces the topic but does not instantly catch their attention.	Typical start. Adequate information about the topic.	Abrupt start. Doesn't catch the audience's interest or attention. Speaks too low.
Visuals and Graphics	The visuals and graphics are highly thoughtful and engaging. They communicate in-depth meaning and represent the topic completely.	The visuals and graphics are good. They somehow engage audience's attention and represent the topic well.	The visuals and graphics are adequate. They do not add enough meaning to the presentation or engage the audience enough.	The visuals and graphics do not support the key points at all. They are only added for the sake of it.
Critical Thinking and Analysis	A strong argument with evidence. Student presents out-of-the-box solutions for the problems. Student reflects remarkable critical thinking skills, devoid of personal biases and subjective conclusions.	A persuasive argument with relevant evidence and effective solutions. Student shows some critical thinking; however, the presentation does not particularly stand out.	The argument is somewhat weak. The student takes a typical approach to problems and solutions. The student shows little critical thinking skills and is biased.	The argument does not make sense. The student isn't clear about the topic or is biased in his/her stance and does not give effective solutions.
Content and Organization	Content is well-thought out. A clear distinction between introduction, argument, supporting details, solutions, and conclusion.	Content is somewhat organized and informative. The discussion is mostly clear but gets blurred sometimes.	The information is mixed up, but the student introduces, argues, and concludes the presentation.	The content is all over the place and there is no clear distinction between anything.
Enthusiasm and Audience Engagement	Student shows great interest in the chosen topic and engages the audience through questions, humor, or enthusiasm.	Student puts in effort to engage audience, appears interested in the topic.	Student only tries to get the presentation over with and does not engage the audience.	Very low energy and voice, particularly reads from the script, does not try to engage anyone.
Confidence	Student appears remarkably confident.	Student puts in effort to appear confident despite,	Student appears visibly nervous, uses too many	Student does not appear confident, talks too fast, reads

	Recovers quickly from any slip-ups	fumbles here and there but recovers effectively.	fillers. Pauses at slip-ups and takes time to recover but finishes the presentation	from the script, uses fillers, and doesn't finish the presentation.
Pace/ Movement/ Gestures	Speaks at the perfect pace, with balanced gestures and movement. Doesn't stand behind the podium.	The pace is somewhat balanced but changes during presentation. Gestures and movement are limited or show nervousness.	Speaks too fast/slow. Stands behind the podium and doesn't use many gestures. Posture shows nervousness	No gestures or movement. Puts hand in pocket or crosses them, speaks too fast/slow.
Posture/ Eye Contact	Confident posture, maintains eye contact with the audience	Mostly appears confident through posture but limited eye contact	Leans on the podium occasionally, some nervous ticks, eye contact is minimal	Leans on the podium throughout, no eye contact, looks either too nervous or casual
Clarity	Speech is clear and articulate, can be understood from a distance. Intonation is good and keeps audience engaged.	Speech is mostly clear and comprehensible. Intonation is somewhat there but loses audience's attention sometimes.	Monotonous speech. Mostly clear but sometimes incomprehensible, loses audience's attention.	Monotonous and incomprehensible speech.
Time Management	Effectively manages time and gets all the points across	Time management is good but there is some slip-up and student misses out some content.	Obviously mismanaged, student misses out on a larger chunk. Focuses too much on one slide and too little on others	Student takes too long on the introduction/content and leaves some slides unaddressed.
Conclusion	Conclusion is well-marked and clear. It is strong and leaves an impression	Conclusion is clearly marked and leaves a somewhat memorable impression.	Conclusion is marked. However, it is weak or does not make an impression	Doesn't conclude
Overall impression	Student shows great effort and energy, comes well-prepared and delivers well.	Student shows effort and tries his/her level best to deliver a strong presentation.	Student does not make much of an impression but shows effort.	Student doesn't show any effort or energy, isn't well-prepared and comes with an AI generated presentation.

Total score: 48